

From Stories from the Roller Coaster (of a Faith Life): “My dilemma between fear and bravery” brought closer every time another group clambered aboard the ride and shortened the line” was about to come to a head. The next ride would be ours. I knew that we would be slingshot like a rocket into the tunnel through the wall to our right. Past that, well, I didn’t know. The ride was completely enclosed, so I didn’t know how high we would climb or how sharply we would turn or whether or not we would go upside down. I think my not knowing was the main reason that when the roller coaster came to a stop in front of us, I swallowed my fear and stepped through the gate and took my seat. “I have had a number of life events that mirrored my roller coaster experience. Some were first-time experiences that brought great fear and anxiety. Others were familiar because of other similar experiences. Still others I approached with bravado to hide the uncertainty lurking just beneath the surface. Occasionally, I have been able to throw my hands in the air and enjoy the ride. But the roller coaster always seems to be the perfect analogy to a life lived by faith.”

• Stories from the Roller Coaster (of a Faith Life) is a collection of faith meets mans plans recollections. The authors faith steps will inspire, encourage, and challenge you in your own faith walk. His goal in writing this book is to connect you with your own faith stories and to challenge you to pass them along to the next generation. Al Ainsworth graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi with a degree in Coaching and Sports Administration. His career plan was to coach baseball at one high school for 40 years, win multiple state championships, and impact generations of young men. His family plan was to marry at age 22, begin a family at age 25, and complete that family by age 30. Over 25 years into his life plan, he can look back on a coaching career that lasted just 13 years at three different schools. A subsequent career in pastoral ministry lasted eight years before giving way to his current endeavors as a writer, speaker, and legacy builder. In between he has done everything from lawn care and landscaping to paper routes, membership sales, tool sales (for a week), glass installation, and even a couple of years as actuarial analyst. And that family plan? Age 22 came and went without so much as a date. In his own words, he was an idiot when it came to his courtship of his future wife. Three children later--with a couple of twists and turns--they continue a counterintuitive faith ride in Hernando, Mississippi.

Stories from the Roller Coaster. 1. Stories from the Roller Coaster (of a Faith Life) A new book from values storyteller Al Ainsworth; 2. Hi!.

I have an ironic story for you. I decided to write about keeping faith during the roller coaster of life and how to not allow one set back to spread into others. During up days when one feels in charge and control by faith feeling great. In the up times life is easy at its best so like a roller coaster one stays up The stories of such experiences are shared again and again like gospel. Familiar stories tend to cause me to drift into a mode that says, Yeah, Yeah, I know that one. The roller coaster is part of the Christian life.
